Station Road, Killamarsh

Located on Station Road in Killamarsh, North East Derbyshire, this development delivers a contemporary take on traditional terraced housing. Designed by Sheffield-based architects CODA, the scheme provides a mix of homes and apartments centered around sustainable design and community living. The architecture balances clean lines with characterful materials to create a streetscape that feels both modern and rooted in its setting.

Speak to a Technical Expert

Creative Brick Solutions worked closely with the design team to specify Hurstwood Multi, a soft, multi-toned brick with gentle colour variation that brings warmth and texture to the facades. Its weathered appearance gives the development an established feel from day one, helping it to sit comfortably within the local context. This was paired with cast stone detailing, including window surrounds and coping stones, which offer contrast and architectural refinement across the scheme.

Our role extended from early-stage consultation through to final supply, providing brick samples, technical guidance, and support throughout the build. The result is a carefully considered material palette that supports the project's ambition to deliver high-quality, design-led homes. With a combination of thoughtful detailing and enduring materials, Station Road reflects the value of collaborative specification, bringing residential architecture to life.
